St. Louis Business Journal - 3:41 PM CDT Wednesday, April 11, 2007

IMPACT Group said Wednesday that it expanded its international presence with the addition of local operations in Australia, Belgium, Denmark, India and Russia.

While the St. Louis-based relocation and career management firm had been servicing the five locations previously, Lauren Herring, president of global services at IMPACT Group, said that the face-to-face aspect of a local hub will provide "an additional level of security and support for the people we're working with."

Each local operation is serviced by a network of employees and independent contractors, between one and five people, Herring said.

With these new hubs, IMPACT Group now operates in 15 locations worldwide, compared to the same time last year when it operated in six locations worldwide, according to Herring, who also said the firm's 2006 revenue jumped nearly 300 percent from 2005.

"Last year, business generated outside the U.S. increased by 400 percent," Herring said.

In addition to the five new locations, IMPACT Group has operations in Canada, China, France, Germany, Hong Kong, India, Japan, Singapore, Switzerland, United Kingdom and the United States.
